Professional Learning Participant Norms

It is expected that participants in professional learning events register properly, arrive promptly, come prepared, and remain for the duration.

When emergencies arise, participants need to communicate as early as possible with the organizer so that vacancies can be filled and other adjustments made.

During the event, participants are expected to be engaged (e.g., participating in discussions, engaging in activities, completing tasks, etc., and submitting follow-up assignments).

Following an event, professionals are encouraged to share information with administrators and colleagues. Collaborative sharing strengthens the learning of the participant and enriches the members of the team.

Absence, partial attendance, lack of engagement, or failure to complete assigned tasks will result in substitute costs being deferred to the school and stipends, if offered, being withheld.
